

Dear Graduate:

On behalf of the Accrediting Commission of Career Schools and Colleges (ACCSC), it is with extreme pleasure that I convey our sincere congratulations on the successful completion of your studies and graduation. This significant accomplishment recognizes your hard work and dedication both inside and outside of the classroom.

The completion of your training program is but one step in a lifetime of continuing education. The dynamics of an ever-changing world will likely provide you with ample opportunities for growth and at the same time challenge you to keep pace with those changes through a commitment to on-going education and professional development. The measure of your success today is an indicator of your ability to face such opportunities and challenges in an equally successful manner tomorrow.

As you move from school into the workforce, you should have confidence in knowing that you are graduating from a school that has undergone a rigorous accreditation process that evaluates educational quality. Your school earned ACCSC accreditation in a manner similar to your own achievement – through hard work and dedication to meeting or exceeding quality standards and by showing its success in educating students.

Embarking on your new path, you also have an opportunity to assist your school in showing its success through your own success in the workforce by keeping in touch with your school.

- Are you working in your field of training? Tell your school about where you are working, your job, and your success in the workplace.
- Are you in the process of searching for a job? Let your school know about your job search, prospects, and any need for assistance.
- Your feedback is important! Provide your school with constructive feedback that can contribute to further improving the overall institution and the success of future students.

As an alumnus, your assistance will help ACCSC assess your school's overall success and facilitate on-going improvement at the school. By sharing your experience you will also help future students make the same important decision regarding their education that you have already made.

Again, ACCSC extends its best wishes for your continued success. Congratulations on a job well done!

Sincerely,

Michale S. McComis, Ed.D.
